LIVING IN VENICE

Accommodation

The most popular options for accommodation are university residences and private accommodation (flat share, studio...).

If you are still looking for accommodation, a list of all options is available at www.iuav.it/housing

To consider all available opportunities for long-term accommodation, you can find a temporary option (hotel, hostels...) for a few days/weeks.

If you are looking for a room/flat to share you can:

- > browse the accommodation notices on the notice boards at Tolentini and Santa Marta
- > consult dedicated websites for accommodation.

When looking for private accommodation, you shall start by defining the aspects that are most important for you (single/double room, washing machine in the house...).

Here is a list of topics you may want to consider:

1 location:

- if it is in Venice: is it close to the university buildings?
- if it is in Venice surroundings: can you easily reach Venice with bus/train from there?
- are there basic services nearby (supermarket, laundrette, café...)?

2 furniture and services

- is kitchen well-equipped?
- is there enough space for your belongings / is there a storage room?
- is there a washing machine?
- is there wi-fi?
- is there air conditioning?

3 budget

- can you afford it?
- are bills included?
- is wi-fi included?
- are there any extra expenses (linen, cooking utensils, furniture)?
- is there a deposit to pay?

4 safety

- is there a locker?
- can you lock your room?

5 flat/roommates

- are your flat/roommates students?

6 rental contract

- all arrangements shall be done in written forms as verbal agreements are not legally binding
- the owner shall register the contract and provide you a copy (non-EU students need a registered copy of the contract when applying for the stay permit)
- take your time to read and understand all clauses before signing
- check the period of stay and termination conditions (if any)
- ask for a receipt for any payment you make in the frame of the contract.

Banks and post Offices

Payments (including taxes) can be made at banks and post offices.

Here is a list of larger post offices, all of them with Sportello amico service (useful for the stay permit):

> in Venice:

- Fondamenta del Gaffaro, 3510 (near Tolentini)
- Calle dello Spezier, 233/D (near the railway station)
- San Polo 2022 (in Campo San Polo)
- San Marco 5016 (behind San Salvador church – near Rialto)

> in Mestre:

- Via Milano 20 (sideroad of Corso del Popolo)
- Viale San Marco 102/R (bus/tram stop San Marco)

Getting around

In Venice

What are the best ways to move around in a city without cars?

While walking is the best option to explore the city there are a few options you shall consider for longer distances:

- > within the city of Venice and the islands of the lagoon: waterbuses (vaporetti)
- > to the mainland: buses or trains

Waterbuses and buses are managed by ACTV through VeneziaUnica, a card to store transport tickets and passes, it is valid for 5 years and lets you travel at reduced fares.

You can purchase it at the dedicated office in Piazzale Roma (open every day from 6.30 am to 7.30 pm)

You need to bring the following documents:

- > a copy of ID or passport
- > your Italian tax code (codice fiscale)
- > a certificate of enrolment at Luav

Exploring the Veneto Region, Italy, Europe

Venice is very well-connected to all main sites in the Veneto Region and with the rest of Italy and Europe. Trains leave from Venezia Santa Lucia train station, buses/coaches from Piazzale Roma, and you can catch a flight from Marco Polo and Treviso airports.

Phone calls

To make a call from Italy you need to dial 00 + country code before the phone number, while if you want to call Italy from abroad you need to dial 0039 before the number.

If you have a mobile phone, you can buy an Italian SIM card for national and international calls.

SIM cards usually cost around 20 euros, and can be purchased at mobile phone shops, post offices or supermarkets. To activate the SIM card you need your Italian tax code, ID or passport and an Italian address of reference.

Pre-paid recharges (ricarica telefonica) can be bought in any tobacconist's, supermarket or online through the mobile operator website/app.

Many free apps allow you to make calls and video calls through the internet.

In case you don't have a mobile phone, you can purchase a pre-paid card at a tobacconist's: there are different types according to the country you would like to call.

Eating habits

In Venice, as in the rest of Italy, there are three main meals: breakfast, lunch, dinner with a few snacks during the day.

A very popular Venetian habit is the aperitivo before dinner: people gather in small taverns (bacari) and cafés to share an aperitif and a few appetizers (cicheti). This habit can get longer at weekends and when it completely replaces dinner it is called apericena.

Venetian cuisine is mainly based on local specialties and fresh food. Ingredients from other parts of Italy sneak into Venetian dishes and cross-cultural fusion is also very popular.

Here is a non-comprehensive list of Venetian specialties:

Appetizers

Baccalà mantecato: codfish served as a white cream on toasted bread

Sarde in saor: sardines, with onion-y mixture

Tramezzini: small sandwiches of white triangular bread with various fillings

First courses

Bigoi in salsa: spaghetti-like pasta with anchovies, onions, tomatoes and fennel seeds

Risotto al nero di seppia: rice with squid ink

Second dishes

Frito misto: crunchy mix of fried shrimp, calamari rings and vegetables

Poenta e schie: small lagoon prawns served with corn cream

Desserts and pastry

Bussolai, zaeti, baicoli: biscuits

Frittelle: small fried dough balls made during the Carnival

Aperitif

Spritz: prosecco wine, bitter liqueur such as Aperol, Campari, Cynar, or Select, sparkling mineral water and a slice of orange or lemon depending on the liqueur, an olive.

Eating out is very common at weekends and it is better to reserve a table if you are going to a restaurant.

Tips are not required but they can be a sign of deep appreciation for the meal or the service.

Besides supermarkets, you can also shop for food specialties in bakeries, pastry shops.

Outdoor markets are a local alternative to find fresh food (e.g. Rialto market).

Weather

Venice is located on the north-eastern coast of Italy and it is washed by the Adriatic Sea that influences its weather all year round.

Below is an overview of the weather conditions in Venice during the year:

Spring: April, May, June

days are long, temperatures are moderate, not much rain

Summer: July, August, September

hot and humid, storms that make the temperature cooler for a few days

Autum: October, November, December

daylight is shorter, pleasant temperatures, fog, acqua alta

Winter: January, February, March

mild, temperature averaging above freezing, snow is rare, acqua alta

In autumn and winter, when astronomical tide and wind cause a large inflow of water in the lagoon, the phenomenon of acqua alta (high tide) takes place.

It usually lasts about two hours and affects only some areas of the city. It generally causes little inconvenience and offers a peculiar perspective on the city.

People are alerted with acoustic signals and walkways are placed on the busiest streets: when the tide is higher than 120 cm rubber boots are necessary.

Venice City Council offers a free high tide alert system via short text messages.

The Tide Forecast Center created Hi!Tide (for Android and iOS), a free app to monitor the tide in Venice and check which areas are flooded.
